Overseas Travel of Personnel

1. With reference to our recent conversation, the Agency Employment Contract, based on Public Law 600 provides the following:

a. An employee stationed overseas on a two year agreement who returns to the United States prior to the completion of one year is required to refund the costs of transportation from the United States to his overseas station and for the return trip. If the employee remains abroad more than one year, and less than two years, he is liable to refund the return portion of his transportation. If the employee remains abroad for the duration of his two year contract, there is no liability on his part for transportation to or from his overseas station.

2. The fact that the employee may be returned to the United States for TDY at the end of one year does not relieve him of responsibility for the refund of his return transportation should he not complete the two year tour of duty overseas.
